

Open Government Idea: FedSpace, but with better software

Years ago GSA tried to make cross-government collaboration a possibility by launching FedSpace. I always thought it was a fantastic idea in theory, but the execution was maybe not the best. Similar to how OMB MAX is a perfectly serviceable wiki but actually a pain to use, it would be great if there could be FedSpace, but easier to use.

For the National Archives, it would be great if a collaboration platform could be used to coordinate records management efforts throughout the federal government.
